

Which two chambers a pair lands in nearly decides its opening angle

Transverse section, true scale — each slab is one 30 mm drift gap, and the dot at the centre is the 20 mm ^3He capsule. θ is drawn at each class's measured median. Chamber B (hatched) has no field-shaping rings, so it measures no angle and enters no pairing — which is what costs the B-D opposing channel.